HONGKONG, November 13th, 1899.

of Customs at Canton, in a report on the trade of that port for last year, made reference to the prevalence of piracy on the river waters. The evil, he said, had become so grave that it could be lightly treated no longer. "The Viceroy," he continued, "has "lately organised a special system of prevention of piracy, based on a detail of "seven launches to definite sections on the "main water routes and supplemented by "guards, all under the control of one "man. The provincial authorities have "become apprehensive that if they do not "act, others who are not entitled to do so

"are likely to interfere to stop the evil.

"But it ought to be admitted that the evil

"is a most difficult one to cope with, and "that a much more vigorous Government "than the Chinese would be put to an "extreme test of its resources in the effort

"to put a stop to it." The detail

"of seven launches does not seem to have "had much effect in reducing piracy, and

"Mr. Drew's successor, Mr. SORENGER,

"has now adopted a further measure, aimed

"particularly at one branch of the evil,

"namely, the looting of passenger launches.

"The proposal is that every launch shall "carry its own special police force and pay tion at present, a position so intolerable that producers are afraid to send their produce to Canton for fear of its being seized on the way.

LORD SALISBURY AT THE GUILD-

HALL BANQUET.

Speaking at the Guildhall banquet Lord

Salisbury said that he had been given that day to mobilise another division for South Africa.

Lord Salisbury said that the present situation in South Africa was grave, but that this was the only part of our relations with other nations to which any apprehension was applicable.

Continuing, Lord Salisbury said that Great Britain would not allow foreign interference in South Africa. He had not heard that any interference was contemplated, but it was impossible to forecast the future of South Africa, and Great Britain did not seek any goldfields or territory, but only equal rights for all races.

the security of the Empire, and to dwell in happy relations with America.

Lord Salisbury also referred to the Samoa agreement with Germany, with which latter
